About This Game

Innocent VR immerses you in the not too distant year of 2218, where Earth has been devastated by natural disaster caused by excessive logging and destruction of natural resources. Unknown viruses have filled every corner of the world with raging mutated creatures. The most terrible of such viruses is known as "carbonized disease" and is the greatest threat to humanity ever known. Infection with this disease will cause a human to carbonize from the inside out without ever rotting, or as some will put it "coke." Embark on an adventure filled with challenging puzzles to solve, avoiding crisis and solving the riddle of this carbonation while unlocking the mystery of these natural disasters.

refunded, needs to be optimized, using a 1070 tho it runs poorly compared to other games.. tho the concept is catchy will buy again if this gets a fix. Definitely worth the price, especially if on sale. The graphics are ok, blurry at times, with no options to improve clarity. The puzzles are simple. The environments are worth the price of admission, with wonderful, awe-inspiring, scale. Voice acting is good, with strange english due to game's origin, but in a funny, idiosyncratic way. Recommended simply because it rises above the average VR game (which is not saying too much).. The game runs fine with i7 and 1070. Visually it is beautyful, everything thing else is... bad.

The butterfly time is cool, but that beep is rough.

There is the little helper bot, but if you don't look exactly at him the whole time you can bearly hear him. Also if you look away for too long he skipps all the dialog :(

Would play again when game is more complete.. My PC
Mainboard: ROG MAXIMUS X HERO (1003)
CPU: I7 8700K 4,3Ghz --> 5,0 Ghz OV
RAM: G.Skill 32GB DDR4 3200Mhz
GPU: GTX1080 Gainward GTH --> +20% OV
OS: Win10 64bit
VR: Oculus with Oculus Home Beta and SteamVR Beta (SS: 2.0)

I play the game without any problems with the Oculus Rift and think it's fantastic. Sound and immersion are great.
But there are a few things that bother me.

- No free movement, this should be in VR actually standart.
- Slow motion has a disturbing painful beeping.
- Eyes Robot is annoying after a short time. Again and again he fell in with commentaries while you want to enjoy the world or if you are in the middle of a puzzle. Were nice if you could disable this in the settings.
